Chicago Reader's review:

In a city blessed with so many Vienna Beef hot dog stands, Wiener and Still Champion stands out, both for its attention to detail and its creativity. The fresh burgers and Chicago hot dogs are among the best of their kind, but it's the more unique offerings that make the trip to this unprepossessing storefront truly worthwhile. The signature item is the Dippin' Dog, a corn dog handmade to order, a flavorful tube steak surrounded by a slightly sweet, crisp commmeal batter. A large number of dipping sauces--including Argentine herb, garlic aioli, and curry ketchup, among others--go well with the Dippin' Dogs, as well as the hand-cut, double-fried skin-on French Fries. And don't tell your cardiologist, but Wiener and Still Champion also offers some of the best country-fried bacon you'll find anywhere. If the owner, Gus, is in the house (as is usually the case) ask him about any off-menu items he may be working on--you're likely to be pleasantly, greedily surprised.

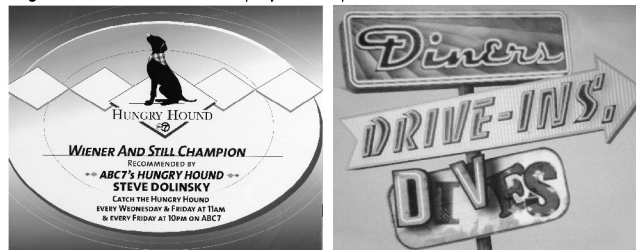

Our History

We began in Evanston in 1975. In 1982, a contest was held among local grade school students to rename the restaurant. We're still using the winning name, The Wiener and Still Champion™.

In 2005, a new owner committed himself to bring new energy and new ideas to The Wiener and Still Champion. As a long-time employee of the 30-year old Winnetka / Hubbard Woods hot dog stand M and H Grill (until the restaurant closed its doors in 2003) and after working for a spice/flavor company, Gus has a unique combination of food industry experience and a passion for hot dog stands.

The Wiener and Still Champion will continue to serve top-quality products, like All-Beef Hot Dogs, Fresh-Ground Burgers, Homemade Chili, and French Fries that are hand cut from whole Idaho potatoes. And don't miss the more unique items, like our famous Dippin' Dogs™ (deluxe corn dogs hand-dipped as you watch), Country Fried Bacon, and Country Fried Gyros.

But, please note, everything is made freshly for you, in house, when ordered. It might take a little time. We hope you'll be patient.
